CCSD Leaders Announce New School Safety Procedures

The Clark County School District (CCSD) has announced a new program to conduct random searches of students at middle and high schools to discourage weapons on campus.

Starting in November, CCSD Police Department officers will be present several times a week at random schools as school administrators conduct random searches of students using handheld metal detectors. These searches will occur as students enter campus, and in some random searches of classrooms. This is a strategy that many other school districts around the country have employed to improve student safety.

In order to ensure that the searches are random, a computer program will choose the schools and classrooms that will be searched weekly. This is key not only to prevent profiling, but also so that students know that at any given time they might be searched. This will serve as a disincentive for students to bring a weapon on campus. For additional information access the below links:

School Justice Partnership to Improve School Safety

The Clark County School District Trustees, along with Superintendent Jesus F. Jara and key community leaders announced a new partnership between CCSD and other organizations to provide more supports and interventions to schools helping students with behavior problems.

Our biggest priority is to keep students and employees safe and students in class where they belong. We strive to treat all students fairly and provide them with early interventions before behavior problems escalate. This will ensure our schools are safe places and our classrooms are more productive, while helping to ensure that students stay on the right track. To learn more about the partnership access:
